By MARTLET

First Impressions.

"No, I've noticed nothing peculiar around the campus—except the professors." . . . So a sweet young thing twittered in our ear when we asked her for her first impressions. . . . All the Old Hands noticed was that the Troglydites of Strath Hall are up to their usual standard . . . Just Beer Pals together . . . We haven't had a chance to check up on the novices to the Monastery on the Hill yet. . . .

What's New?

Bill Gentleman says: "After 15 years, they finally got around to painting the back windows of my Arts Building. That's news!" . . . Under the head of improvements, we might mention that someone cut down the bush by the Biological Building (we wish someone would cut down the shrubbery sprouting on a number of upper lips), that the Meds have polished all the brass works up at their storage plant for stufts, that the Plumbers have gone artistic with green, gray and black paint. . . .

Plumbing's an Art.

The Engineering Building begins to look more and more like the Arts Building since they moved debating over there. . . . A Freshette even mistook it for the Arts Building, and cheerily toddled through the sacred portals. . . . Agghast at this unheard-of outrage, Fred Barton bustled her forth.

The S.P.M. Again!

The ardent politicians on the campus are already besieging us with worthy causes. . . . Wollen Sie elwas geben fur die armen deutschen Leier die so viel leiden haben! . . . Say that again! . . . This time they hired some poor pavement artist to inscribe STAND BY THE CZECHS on the sidewalk in front of the Rod-dick Gates. . . . The perennial Fight for Peace seems to be with us again. . . .

Science Speaks.

A bunch of bananas is growing on the campus. . . . This remarkable phenomenon may be admired in the hothouse behind the Biological Building. . . . Coffee and tea plants are also sprouting there. . . . Not satisfied with these achievements, they're trying to cultivate coconuts—probably to feed the monkeys they got from Belmont Park. . . .

Ahe You Psychic?

A news note says that an under-developed thyroid gland may make the possessor psychic. . . . They've discovered two of these thyroidal spiritualists on the campus. . . . So that's what the Physical Examinations are for! . . . They might try getting in touch with the ghost of Student Apathy. . . .

Orchids for Milady.

Incidentally, they've also got a night-blooming cactus up in the greenhouse. . . . The flowers are over a foot in diameter. . . . We suggest that some enterprising Frosh present it to his latest O and O for a corsage. . . . She'll be stuck on him for the rest of the term!

War News.

War may yet be averted. . . . Hitler's giving a banquet. . . . We hope he insists on eating that synthetic (Continued on Page Four)

McGILL PRINCIPAL ATTENDS SMOKER

FROSH MEET IN UNION

Refreshments and Singsong Provide Amusement

MAJOR FORBES SPEAKS

Student Society Representatives Describe Phases of University Life

The highlight of tonight's Annual Freshman Smoker which will be held at 8.30 p.m. in the McGill Union will be a welcome from Principal Douglas. All freshmen and students attending McGill for the first time are invited.

The Freshman Reception Committee which organizes the smoker, has invited leaders of all branches of campus activity to attend in order to explain the functions of all the different clubs and societies on the campus. The purpose of these smokers is to afford freshmen and newcomers an opportunity to become acquainted with one another and also with the various phases of university life at McGill.

Other speakers will be Russ Merfield president of the McGill Union; Ian Shaw, president of the Scarlet Key, the Editor of the "Daily," and other representatives of the Student's Society. The rules for rushing by fraternities will be explained by Ted McMurrich.

Sports Stars Attend.

Major Forbes will attend and talk about the Athletic Council, while members of Coach Doug Kerr's Staff will give some news of football activities. The coach and captain of the hockey team and Bert Light, boxing coach will tell about their respective activities. Another group will be the stars of the track, swimming, and water-polo teams.

Because previous smokers have often been so well attended by upperclassmen, there are rumours of strict exclusion of all but bona-fide frosh. So unless the Sophs can innocently ask if "The Union" belongs to the A.F. of L. or some other such boner they will have to remain outside.

Refreshments including candy and cigarettes will be served and a sing-song under the leadership of the president of the Glee Club will top off the evening's festivities. Cheers and yells will be led by cheer leaders, and it is expected that a band will be on hand to liven up the vocal efforts. All attending are asked to bring along their "bibles" or red handbooks, so that all can join in the singing.

The fact that the new Jefferson nickel will buy only seven-tenths as much as a buffalo nickel did when it was first coined proves that what this country needs is a good 5-cent nickel.

Exchange Sends Call For Used Textbooks

The McGill Book Exchange, located in the Union, will be open at 8.45 this morning until 3 this afternoon for receiving books. First year Arts and Science texts and all engineering books are especially needed. No books will be sold until next Tuesday, as today, Saturday, and Monday are reserved for receiving only. On Tuesday, however, students will be able to buy their required texts at a low cost.

Any second-hand books are received and later sold, the returns going to the donors less a small commission necessary for the upkeep of the Exchange.

Record Crowd of Newcomers Entertained by S.C.M.

Questionnaire, Skit, Dancing Are Features of Programme

By J. W. AND J. H.

A record crowd of green frosh met at the second get together of this session when the annual S. C. M. Conversat took place in Strathcona Hall last night.

There was music, there was drama, and there was everything a new student could desire. Frosh met freshettes (and there were plenty of them), the Hall was filled with the voices of Joe Colleges and Betty Coeds getting acquainted with each other.

The crowd began to arrive around 8.30 in the evening, and each was carefully labelled to dispense with all formal introductions. After a large number had gathered in the ballroom of Strathcona Hall, Cuthbert Gifford, president of the S.C.M. and master of ceremonies, announced that every freshman was to find the coed bearing a number corresponding to his own. In this way the gathering was rapidly organized, although a few stray frosh could be heard calling their numbers aloud in stentorian accents, desperately attempting to find their respective partners.

Quizzes Answered.

Once the crowd had been paired off questionnaires were passed around entitled: "Hi Frosh, how green are you?" There was then comparative silence while everyone tried to find the correct answers to such preposterous questions as: Is the "Red Menace" the Warden of R.V.C.? Where is the Scarlet Key? Is Douglas Hall a relative of Moyses Hall?

After giving the students time to answer the questions and get acquainted, Ivor Williams, last year's S.C.M. president, announced that he would read off the correct answers. The green frosh were informed that Bill Gentleman was not a degree but an institution and that "Hell Below" is another name for the Pit.

The crowd was later shuffled skillfully by the committee so that the new partners were formed. A piano artist provided the music for a short dance, after which the feature of the evening was announced. Three acts were given by members of the upper classes depicting three phases in Joe College's life.

Skit Produced.

First, Glenn Cowan was seen entering the registration office, there to be confronted by four stern professors, Cameron Walsh, Ken Ormrod, Jim Stewart and Howard Minogue. Staggering under a pile of books and bright green symbolical tie, he expressed his intention of taking everything from English 74 to Canadian Nickel 23½.

The entrance of Betty Bulley, as a co-ed, roused the apathetic professors and the act ended with riotous exit of all the characters.

After a short dance and "conversat"-ion, the play was resumed, now in Joseph's study. Joe is struggling with a letter home, but inspiration arrives as, one after the other, M. Wright and Lloyd MacKeen enter, and try to persuade the credulous freshman to join their clubs.

BUREAU SERVES AS GUIDE FOR NEW STUDENTS

Help for Students to Plan Activities

DESK IN UNION LOBBY

All Campus Organizations Have Lent Support

To help the newcomers plan their activities for the coming year, the Freshman Information Bureau has been instituted and is working as part of the Reception Committee.

In an interview with the Daily today, Don Williams, who has taken a great interest in this plan, stated: "To derive the full benefit from his college career, a student should participate in at least one form of extra-curricular activity. On the other hand, it is very important that he should not be railroaded into too many activities to the detriment of his studies. It is with the view of helping the Freshman find the activities suited to him and which he will enjoy that the Bureau is operating."

Column in Daily.

With the co-operation of the various clubs and societies on the campus, the Bureau is making a schedule of the first meetings of these organizations. These meetings will be of a short and purely organizational nature, designed to let the Freshman meet the executive and let him know how the club functions.

Beginning on Monday, the Bureau will run a column on Page 4 of the Daily, publicizing these meetings and giving their time, place and date. The Freshman Class is urged to watch the column carefully as it is the one way to get into activities from the beginning.

Mac Staff Planning Party for Students

Macdonald, College, Que., September 30.—The staff at Macdonald College is planning a reception for undergraduates in the Faculty of Agriculture and the School of Household Science tomorrow evening.

Dancing, songs and refreshments will be included on the program which begins at 8 p.m. in the Women's Gymnasium. Everyone who comes is requested to wear a piece of paper bearing his name and address.

Combined registration in the Faculty of Agriculture and the School of Household Science now totals 256, it was announced Wednesday afternoon from the Registrar's office. Together with those already enrolled in the School for Teachers and Homemakers class, this brings the total Macdonald student body up to 428. About 20 students are expected to register late.

REDPATH LIBRARY TOURS BEGIN TODAY

With a view toward acquainting new students with the facilities at their disposal, the staff of the Redpath Library is continuing a policy it inaugurated last year.

Special tours of the library will be conducted by members of the staff; they begin today and will continue until October 7. Three trips will be made each morning, at 10, 11 and 12 o'clock in the afternoon.

The conductor of the tour will explain the details involved in registering at the library, and in using the catalogue. Students will be shown how to borrow books, and how to use the many reference books and periodicals. Finally, a short tour of the stacks will be made; stacks are normally open only to honor students in the third and fourth years.

The third act showed an absent-minded professor, Fraser MacMillan, recently married, playing with his Bolo-ball. The fourth act was supplied by members of the freshman class. Thereupon the crowd danced and ate in the Pit.

Etienne Plays For Tea Dance in Union

Opening the college social season for all students, the tea dance after tomorrow's McGill-R.M.C. game will feature the playing of Archie Etienne and his orchestra.

The Union Ballroom has been selected as the site of the season's first general event. A record attendance is expected.

The tea dances which follow the rugby games have in previous years attracted large crowds. Russ Merfield, president of the McGill Union, when interviewed, said, "I expect that this year's tea dances will prove even more popular than those of other years." Many notables in campus life have indicated their intention of attending.

Archie Etienne's orchestra will be playing from 5 to 7.30 p.m. There will be a short pause around six to allow for the serving of tea in the Union Cafeteria.

Tickets, which are selling at $1 a couple and include refreshments, are available at the Tuck Shop in the McGill Union.

JUNIORS GREET CO-EDS AT TEA

Freshettes to Be Entertained at R.V.C.

Junior Reception Committee in Charge of Preparations

This afternoon, all feminine newcomers to McGill will be welcomed officially at the Royal Victoria College. Every wide-eyed Freshette is looking forward, with nervous excitement, intermingled with a feeling of awe to the affair in their honour.

This welcome is to be extended in the form of a tea sponsored by the Juniors. The Juniors who are in charge of the Freshman Reception Committee have arranged the function to create a general feeling of friendliness among the women students. Mrs. W. M. Grant, Warden of Royal Victoria College will act as Head of the Committee to welcome the Juniors and Freshettes at 4 o'clock in the Reception Room. The Seniors will also be present this year to add to the festivities.

All new co-eds are urged to attend this function and aid in making the tea a thorough success.

CIRCLE SMOKER HELD

Maccabees Initiate Frosh in Strathcona Hall Last Night

The Maccabean Circle began its activities last night with a freshman smoker at Strathcona Hall. Sydney Friedman, president of the Maccabean Circle, expressed the hope that the freshmen would rapidly adjust themselves to campus life. He also urged them to take the opportunity to meet the upper year men.

After the refreshments, the president introduced Dr. Norman Viner, honorary president of the Circle. Dr. Viner, in a brief survey of the international scene, expressed the opinion that the actions of Hitler were those of a monomaniac; he has succeeded in commanding intense national unity because of past injury to national pride.

Phil Vineberg briefly addressed the gathering, proffering the aid and services of the upper year men to the frosh. Morton Godine took the opportunity to announce the formation of a Student Zionist Group, the Avoukah, which is at present functioning in other colleges.

Despite the fact that the frosh were faced with two affairs in Strathcona Hall, the Conversat and the Smoker, they seemed to be able to divide their time well between the two.

While thou livest, keep a good tongue in thy head.—Shakespeare.

FRESHMEN

Registration of new reporters for the Daily will continue today between 12 and 3. Freshmen are invited to drop into the Daily office in the Union where they will be greeted by editors.

TORCH PARADE, BAND FEATURES AT PEP RALLY

Six-Man Football Will Be Demonstrated

SET EFFIGIES ABLAZE

Programme Includes Sing-song and Kicking Competition

With a torchlight parade to start the proceedings and bands in attendance, the McGill Football Rally gets under way next Tuesday.

McGill and U. of M. students as well as delegations from all the high schools of Montreal will gather on the Campus at 7.30 for the torchlight parade to the Stadium. There they will witness a demonstration of the new six-man rugby football in a game between McGill and the Montreal Cubs.

The feature attraction of the evening is a monster bonfire. Effigies of Toronto, Queen's and Western will set the sparks flying. Other interesting features are the High School Kicking competition for the A. M.C. Murphy Trophy, a flashlight dumbbell show by the Y.M.C.A., and a relay race between McGill and the McGill Grads. After a sing-song former football captains will be introduced.

Grads Hold Reunion.

A supper will be held at the Stadium for the press and old football grads. Loud speakers are being provided by the Imperial Tobacco Company and a grand piano by the Willis Company.

If the old saying that lightning never strikes three times in the same place is true, Tuesday's Football Rally will be the first in three years not to be rained out.

SPC JOINS CZECH PARADE ON SUNDAY

Students Will March in Support of World Peace

The Social Problems Club will support the city-wide Czechoslovakian Peace Parade and Meeting being held this Sunday afternoon. Prominent in the program of the meeting which is to follow the parade will be the presence of Senator V. Benes, brother of President Benes, who brings a message direct from Czechoslovakia.

Calling on students to participate, the club executive stated that "the crisis is not yet over; Czechoslovakia, standing firm, with the support of the great democracies can still keep peace in the world. But in order to ensure peace, democratic and peace-loving people the world over must actively show their sympathy and support for that great country."

Those desiring to participate in the Parade are asked to meet outside the McGill Union this Sunday at 1.30 p.m. From there they will proceed to join the procession. The route is not yet definite, but will appear in the city press.

Czechs Speak.

Following the parade a large meeting is being held in the St. James Market Hall, corner Ontario and Amherst streets. Here, official representatives of the Czechoslovakian Government, in addition to representatives of the various organizations participating will speak. A member of the Social Problems Club, to be chosen today or tomorrow, will also deliver a short address.

MAYBE THEY GOT THE POINT AFTER ALL!

Albuquerque, N.M., September 30.—The point of the whole thing was the two comely women tourists should not have put the porcupine's quills in their hip pockets before sitting down.

Visiting El Morro national monument, they found a dead "porky" at the foot of the historic rock and pocketed some of the quills.

Custodian Robert Budlong made the necessary extractions with a pair of pliers, he reported Friday.

CELEBRATED ACTOR TO VISIT MCGILL

HERE SOON

SIR CEDRIC HARDWICKE, famed British actor, who will address McGill students next week.

SPEAKS NEXT WEEK

Details of Address Not Yet Announced

NOTABLE CAREER

Started Career in South African Stock Company

Sir Cedric Hardwicke, well-known English actor, has accepted an invitation to speak some time next week at McGill. The details of the event have not yet been announced, but will be found in subsequent issues of the Daily.

Although a screen star of some note, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, known throughout England as "Shaw's favourite actor" is better known for his fine characterizations on the legitimate stage. The actor has had many successes both in England and on this side of the Atlantic; notable among them is the play "Shadow and Substance," a New York dramatic triumph, which Sir Cedric is now taking on tour.

In America, Sir Cedric branched out into motion picture work, and will be remembered by the movie-going public for his fine work in such pictures as "Becky Sharp," "The Rome Express" and "Green Light." Sir Cedric has the distinction of being the youngest knighted actor on the British stage. This tribute was paid to him in 1934 for his achievements in the theatrical world.

Fought in Great War.

Sir Cedric began his theatrical career after graduating from a dramatic school, and found his first lengthy employment touring South Africa with a stock company. After a year of this he returned to England, but before he could make use of the experience he had gathered in his African engagement, the War broke out. He enlisted and went to France.

When he returned with some of the last to be brought back, he again sought employment in the theatre. It was a long and disheartening task, for the plays did not last long and he was hard pressed to find enough work. When George Bernard Shaw first saw him act, he saw in him a man who would go far, and consequently he was soon playing the leads in many of Shaw's plays.

NOON-HOUR ADDRESS

"Behind the Headlines" Series Resumed Monday

Monday marks the beginning of the 1938-39 series of "Behind the Headlines" talks given in the noon-hour at Strathcona Hall.

The first speaker this year will be Miss Rose Terlin, who will also speak at the S.C.M. Open House on Sunday. Miss Terlin's topic on Monday from 1.30 to 1.55 p.m. will be "The Plight of Czechoslovakia," in which she will deal with Hitler's demands of the republic, Chamberlain's peace efforts, and the present Munich conference.

"Behind the Headlines" talks are given one day a week from 1.30 to 1.55 in order to allow students to have lunch, attend the talk, and then arrive back in time for two o'clock lectures. Other speakers later in the year will include McGill professors and Montreal businessmen.

World News In Brief

Plans For Peace Are Formed.

Munich, September 30.—Europe felt eased today as an agreement "in principle" for ceding to Germany the Sudeten regions of Czechoslovakia was announced. The continent's big four, Prime Minister Chamberlain, Reichsfuehrer Hitler, Premier Daladier and Premier Mussolini disclosed they had come to terms for settling the grave issue which threatened the world's peace. The official announcement said evacuation of the Sudeten region would begin Saturday and be completed ten days later. Meantime, in Rome, celebrations were held for what was termed Mussolini's "great victory" in bringing about peace.

New Tornadoes Kill 22, Injure Hundreds.

The Freshman Smoker

HOW important are extra-curricular activities? This question will be answered tonight.

Freshmen are confronted each year with opportunities to join any of a score of Campus organizations. Into their bewildered minds flash many considerations. What do these activities offer? How much time do they take? What is expected of us?

To clear up these problems Campus leaders will gather at the Freshman Smoker and will outline the purposes and functions of their organizations. Brief speeches from representatives will be the order of the night.

The Smoker will serve still another purpose. It will give newcomers to the University the chance to meet their principal informally. This is the first freshman class privileged to hear Dr. Douglas since his inauguration last January.

Know Your Library

THE value of the library in the education of the college student cannot be over-estimated. The knowledge of where to find books and how to use them is an essential part of his equipment and will be an asset not only during his college course but throughout his entire life. Here at McGill every student has within his reach nearly four hundred thousand books.

In order that freshmen may waste no time in becoming familiar with one of the greatest collections in the country, a series of tours of the Redpath Library will be conducted until October 7. Members of the Library staff will be on duty to show groups of students through the building, to explain how to register at the Library, how to use the catalogue, how to borrow books, how to find reference books, periodicals, etc. A visit to the stacks, which ordinarily are not open to other than honour students, will complete the tour. This is an opportunity no freshman can afford to miss.

It's Your Paper

MANY students on the campus have a notion that the DAILY is planned and written by a small clique of editors and reporters who resent the suggestions and refuse the contributions of those outside the inner circle. Such an idea, however, is quite false; the DAILY is your paper—you pay for it and read it, but it is yours even in more ways than these.

The DAILY welcomes correspondence about any topic of interest to the student body, whether or not it has been mentioned in the editorial or news columns. If you feel the urge to air your views on some situation, write to the editor about it.

One in which you can help put out the DAILY is by contributing stories, poems, and other literary efforts to the Feature page. No reporters are given assignments this page—its success depends entirely on you.

MUSIC

A FIRST SUMMER SEASON.

Those of us who hope for a renaissance of musical interest and enterprise in this city have not had far to look for encouragement in recent years. That is to say, aside from the regular performances of our two principal symphonic organizations both orchestras have worked to a common end—the creation of new and larger potential audiences. Both Dean Clarke and Dr. Pelletier have worked, among the younger generation, to make the enjoyment of music equal with the enjoyment of reading a stirring book, or the enjoyment of watching a favorite sport.

Another innovation found the public's favor this summer, when La Societe des Concerts Symphoniques organized a summer season of a type long popular in American and, indeed, other Canadian cities. Some six thousand persons made up the weekly audiences for the concerts, eight or nine of which took place at the chalet atop Mount Royal.

The orchestra perched on the steps of the building, midway betwixt heaven and earth, and a regiment of seats reached far backward, almost to the balustrade of the lookout, with a section of little tables and chairs in front centre for the thirsty and affluent. There were also many number of hardy souls who sat on the balustrade itself, enviably able to listen, with the city some seven hundred feet below and immediately behind them, whole hundreds stood, sat, and lay on the grass at either side.

The distribution of types of listeners was what one might have expected. My own observation was that occasional concert-goers probably contributed the greatest numbers, but there must have been many who had never before attended a concert by either of Montreal's orchestras. In any event, education by that most universal of mediums, the radio, had robbed such a classification of any practical meaning, and the audiences were uniformly well-informed and appreciative. Of course light music was in order, and the programmes were designed and played by conductors most of whom are long familiar to this city's concert-goers. From New York came, of course, Dr. Pelletier himself, Paul Stassevitch, and Rosario Bourdon; Toronto contributed Sir Ernest MacMillan, and Ettore Mazzoleni; and Harry Norris represented local conductors. The venture merits the applause of all those interested in the musical future of this city.

"SHADOW AND SUBSTANCE."

Sir Cedric Hardwicke, well-known English actor, is appearing in Eddie Dowling's production of Paul Vincent Carroll's "Shadow and Substance" at His Majesty's theatre for one week only beginning Monday, October 3.

With this performance, Sir Cedric opens a transcontinental tour covering over 60 cities in the United States and Canada, and continuing until June next, when Sir Cedric must return to London.

The premiere in New York was well-received by drama critics and public alike. It ran for 35 weeks, and received the double distinction of being acclaimed both as the finest play and the finest performance of the season. Sir Cedric's performance won for him the Drama League Medal, the highest honour that a player can receive in the New York theatre. Sir Cedric is the youngest of the distinguished English actors to be knighted for exceptional histrionic ability. While this is his first personal appearance on this side of the water, he is already well-known for his performances in motion pictures such as "Les Miserables," "Green Light," "Nine Days a Queen," "Becky Sharp," and "Rome Express," to name but a few.

In recent years Sir Cedric has appeared in London in a number of plays which later became great hits in the States; notably, "The Barrets of Wimpole Street," "Tovarich," and "The Late Christopher Bean." He is said to be George Bernard Shaw's favourite actor, so far as anyone can be said to be a favourite of Shaw!

In "Shadow and Substance," Sir Cedric will be supported by the brilliant original New York cast, headed by Sara Algood and Julie Haydon, and including Lloyd Gough, Len Doyle, Harry Sothorn, Gerald Buckley, Julius Stern, Almira Sessions, and John L. Kearney.

Pen and Ink

ODE TO A KETCHUP BOTTLE.

When he who adores thee has left but the wreck
Of a stout constitution hebind,
Will the pang, indigestion, his appetite check,
And expel thy false charms from his mind?
Ah no! the just claims of his pot is denied:
He devours thee once more at a gulp,
Though thy soda doth torture and twist his inside
And dissolve his poor liver to pulp!

Oh say, what's the source of that fatal allure
That so oft is exerted by thee?
What witchery makes him consider thee pure
When his stomach can never agree?
Alas, that the spell of thy hexagon form
And the curve of thy lip lush and red
Should consume all these victims with ardour
So warm
That they can't give thee up till they're dead!

One-fourth of the co-eds at the University of Washington cannot wink, according to eye tests made there. Could this mean that Washington men aren't as inspiring as students at other colleges?

WOMAN'S OWN

This is a column about women. At least that's what we had in mind when we sat down at the typewriter, but we will amble on whither soever the spirit moves us and perhaps we'll end up at R.V.C.

We hope all you Freshies are going to the Tea that is being given in your honour today. You really shouldn't miss one of those teas. They are sort of every-woman-for-herself affairs but they're the best way of getting acquainted that we can think of. (Never end a sentence with a preposition.) What we mean is you really get close to each other!

Another thing you Freshies should learn to appreciate is that beautiful common room in the R.V.C. Now you can gossip in the lap of luxury with ash trays and everything. Gone are the days when one just sat and gazed at bleak expanses of uncarpeted floors or listened to one's voice come echoing back from the ancestral walls. And the person we have to thank for the change is Mrs. Grant, the warden of R.V.C. who has captured the heart of every sophomore, Junior and Senior of the Royal Victoria College and whom you Freshies will probably have the privilege of meeting today.

Activities are things we all find a little hard to regulate in our first year. Don't let yourself be inveigled into too many things, but on the other hand try to join some club or society. Even though you are only a member for one year and join up in something else next year, still you are helping to make at least one activity a success, and though you may not see any visible and immediate benefit from what you have done, at the end of your fourth year you will discover that everything you put your hand to help you in some way, we hope.

Some of you have already joined up on the Daily for which we are very glad. To the Freshies who did so, let us advise you not to take the tempers of your night editor too seriously. On the other hand try, oh so hard, not to ask too dumb questions. Of course they may not sound that way to you, but you might try them out on a seasoned reporter before you ask the night editor. If there are any things on which you are very doubtful and hesitate to ask even a old hand who may be present the Woman's editor may be used as a last resort.

We hope to see all the Co-eds out rooting for Old McGill on Saturday. Everybody should know the yells and songs by now. Still you'd better bring your "bibles" along just in case.

News has just reached our ears of the Bolo Ball tournament between the coaches of the senior football team. We at least that's one thing we haven't seen a Co-ed doing this year although you never can tell what will develop after a few weeks of lectures. Maybe it will be something else by then unless it gains a hold among members of the Rugby team. In fact it may be just that extra something McGill Rugby has been looking for all these years. We can just imagine the affect it would have on Varsity. Just think of their faces when the Redmen came galloping down on them all batting Bolo Balls furiously! In fact we might develop it into a contest, with both sides equipped with bigger and better balls, at least it would be just as comprehensible to this reporter as a rugby game, but then we can't all be bright.

Co-Eds Are Different

Every student knows, of course, how greatly college life improves a young woman, particularly as far as her personality is concerned.

No one—ourselves least of all—would dare to doubt the accepted fact that, owing to their university training, co-eds have a broader outlook, think for themselves, and do not follow the common herd; there are no carbon copies at McGill; each college girl is an original. In short, co-eds are different.

This, as any sweet young thing will admit, is their chief attraction in the eyes of mankind.

In spite of this well-known fact, your reporter failed to observe one female student who in the past few days:

(a) Did not renew each and every acquaintance with the following original questions: "How are you? Did you have any suppers? What did you do all summer?"

(b) Remembers the three replies made by any other co-ed.

(c) Having registered after careful consideration in April, did not change her entire course in September.

(d) Did not demand, as her right, permission to take or omit at least one course contrary to regulations.

(e) Whether or not mannish suits are personally becoming to her, did not turn up in one, because it is the accepted campus garb.

Strangely enough, this does not hold true of the Freshettes, who all seem to do, say, and wear the most startling things. Indeed, it might seem to the casual observer, that it is the humble beginners, who have not yet received the broadening influences of the university, who are the rugged individualists, and that the members of the upper years are all pretty much alike.

Naturally, though, the casual observer would be mistaken. Because everyone knows that co-eds are different.

WHO IS IT?

"His name units all that is agitating millions today, what either drives them to despair or fills them with fanatic determination."

No; you're wrong. It is not about Hitler. Only one of the things the Feuhrer said Monday about Benes of Czechoslovakia.

"You took the words right out of my mouth," Benes might answer.

Nothing is so helpless as the fat girl in a rumble seat, unless it's the fellow with her.

Memories of Old McGill

(Reprinted from the Autumn issue of The McGill News.)

By A. G. B. CLAXTON.

No one of today's generation realizes the joy and the beauty of the fresh and green College Grounds of sixty and more years ago. On the east side of the Avenue from Sherbrooke Street there was a wealth of beautiful trees—lovely maples, sturdy oaks and several grand elms. Then in the hollow below Baynes' door there was a magnificent butternut, and in Dr. Dawson's wee garden, a hickory.

Sir Andrew Macphail's The Old University has started many blessed memories. In the tail end sixties and seventies we lived at 200 and 198 University Street, the two greystone houses on the west side immediately south of what is now Milton Street. My father, the late T. James Claxton, had given Dr. Dawson some geological specimens and had contributed towards the Potter's Lodge, where Herbert, and his red-cheeked family lived, and we had a permit to use the College Grounds. In the spring, besides the soft green foliage, the hawthorn bushes, from opposite the great butternut tree right down to Sherbrooke Street, were a mass of lovely blossoms, white and cream, which "wafted around their rich perfume." The small burn came out from under the sidewalk in front of the first Medical Building, running all the way to the south side of the grounds and disappearing under Sherbrooke Street. Almost behind our house there was a five-plank bridge to cross the burn and the water which rippled on the pebbles below was clear as crystal. About where the Macdonald Engineering Building, now stands there was a waveless pond about forty yards by twenty nearly hidden by the towering banks, and on its edges buttercups and some blue flowers flourished daintily. A sand path wended its way through the east side of the grounds and beyond it, on the University Street side, there was an abundance of clover, violets and an occasional wild strawberry plant. Several cows were pastured below Dr. Dawson's garden. We used to listen to the bands of the "Regulars" playing in the old band stand. There were a number of students in the Prince of Wales Rifles (Col. Frank Bond) and about the time of the Guibord disturbance, I remember seeing the P.W.R. drilling on the old campus and fiery Major Barjum—Barjum of the gymnasium—becoming tangled up by his sword and falling from his restless steed, borrowed from McEachran's or the Sheddens Company.

In winter we children used to draw up our sleighs in front of Baynes' door, which was on the east side of the Arts Building, and if we met Dr. Dawson he patted our heads and gave us one of those beautiful gentle smiles, and if we met Baynes, a tall, white-whiskered irascible old gentleman, he would roar at us; while old Herbert, of the red-cheeked brood, would grab our sleighs and tell us that if ever again he caught us sliding on the College Grounds he would give our sleighs to the police. We returned and were caught again and again, and again he would threaten but never punish.

Often times in the spring when I pushed open my blinds I could see Dr. Dawson weeding his garden long before breakfast time, his bald head appearing and disappearing as he bent down to tend his beloved plants.

My father used to dine the medical graduating class and long before they graduated, standing at our gate, I got to know several of them and used to run across University Street to take the hand of Osler or Roddick or some other jolly medico. Yet I never went inside the gates with them for fear they might take me down to the dissecting room. In winter we were terrified when we saw the dim gas lighting up the basement of the Medical Building. When we were naughty our nurses used to tell us grim stories of body-snatching and what might happen to disobedient boys. In those days obituary notices ended with "Friends and acquaintances will kindly accept this intimation" and it was hinted that on more than one occasion some medical student accepted "the kind intimation," received a pair of black kid gloves and a crepe at the entrance of deceased's late residence (such was the custom), and accompanied the cortege to the cemetery and the same night transported the "stiff" to the basement of the Old Medical Building. Little wonder we children were terrified of the gas-lighted basement!

I remember the early rugby games against Harvard. About 1876 the Harvard team came on the campus, coated in canvas jackets, which we schoolboys felt was most unfair as the wearers proved slippery to catch. Harvard had a sprinting half-back, Sorley. When the forwards were lined out for a throw-in from the sidelines and the thrower was a Harvard man, Sorley walked up to the level of the line, but quite fifty yards further out the thrower-in heaved the ball far over the heads of the line into

Redmen Are Mobilized For Invasion By Soldiers

MERIFIELD AND R. KEEFER WILL PLAYSATURDAY

Student Excursion to Toronto —Is Rumor

COUPONS HONoured

Murray Telford Out With Injured Leg

The football season is getting away to a great start—at Molson Stadium tomorrow afternoon Coach Doug Kerr's Football Squad will receive a chance to see how they stand for the coming Intercollegiate League schedule. Next Saturday, also at the Stadium, Queen's will arrive for the season's opener. And the week after (October 15) the Redmen will play Varsity at Toronto—rumours have been flying that the greatly anticipated Student Excursion to the Queen City will become a reality. Rumours of this nature usually have the property of becoming more than just a realistic dream if the students themselves are in favor of the idea, and express their views along this line. Students' coupons are good for tomorrow's game, and a big crowd from the freshmen year will be on hand.

Last week while McGill was trimming the Cubs, Western was giving the boys from R.M.C. a white-washing by a score of 38-0. It may be doubtful if McGill can sink the Cadets by the same score, but on their showing tomorrow the master minds on the McGill bench will plan for the invasion from Queen's a week from tomorrow.

With only ten days training to their credit McGill were able to take the Cubs without a great deal of trouble. Among the missing last Saturday was Russ Merifield, who last year, was one of the best men in the college circuit, however, Russ is now in shape and will be ready for duty in tomorrow's game. Bob Keefer the fleet-foot of last year's team, after Russ McConnell had to drop out for the season, will be in uniform and ready for action. With two new kickers on the team this year in the persons of Herb Westman and Perry Foster who are both kickers above the average, McGill's punting worries seem to be settled for this season.

One Casualty.

Last night at the Stadium the team was showing plenty of pep in their workout. Murray Telford who played a great game last Saturday against Cubs got into uniform last night but found that his injured shin prevented him from running. In the game last week Murray received a bad kick on the leg and during the past week it has not responded to treatment. Coach Kerr will most likely keep Murray out of tomorrow's game and save him for next week's first schedule game. The team did not hold a heavy scrimmage but were brushing up on their plays, which seemed to be functioning in great style.

Bundled up with a heavy sweater was Jimmy Hall (who scored McGill's first touch down of the season last week), kicking and perfecting his drop kicking which was not working perfectly last week. As it appeared last week that the wing lacking in the squad's make-up was the chance they missed for extra points in converting their touches, despite the fact that Andy Anton managed to get the extra point on Bob Kenny's touch. With accurate placement or drop kicking for the season the team won't miss the tries at "three points" as they did last week.

Chip Drury will be playing against his old team mates on Saturday afternoon when the boys play R.M.C. Chip will be playing outside wing coupled with Jimmy Hall. Out last season but back in uniform for this season is Ernie Tabah who is taking his place on the line with Captain Lou Ruschin, Murray Telford and Bob Kenny.

McGill's starting lineup for the game with R.M.C. tomorrow will be the following:

FLYING WING

Alec Hamilton, who will be throwing the passes in tomorrow's game with R.M.C.

man; quarter, Perowne; snap, Robb; insides, Ruschin, Bartram; middles, Kenny, Anton; outsides, J. Hall, Wilson.

Subs: Foster, Drury, Bradsher, Fullerton, Jacobson, McGibbon, E. Keefer, McDougall, Knox, Beveridge, Muttelbury, Tabah, Cuke, Rossiter, C. Smith, La Barge.

TANKSTERS TO GET NEW COACH

Charles Weyland Now Coaches Redmen

Many of Last Year's Men Return to Squad

This season the Red Water Polo Squad will be coached by Charles A. Weyland, who by the way is a Pat Earl Trophy winner of former years. The Pat Earl Trophy is awarded to the player who is of most value to his team in the City League. We can look with hope to our prospective water polo squad despite the fact our able coach, George Vickerson, has retired from the position of coach and has assumed that of honorary president. McGill's new coach has set the date for the opening practice on Monday, October 3rd, at 5:00 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Pool. This being the first time the coach will have the prospective members of his team together, he will precede the opening workout by a half-hour discussion on the various phases of the game.

Regular practices will probably be held five times a week on Mondays to Fridays inclusive at 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., although nothing is definite until at least after the meeting on October 3rd.

Many of last year's seniors will turn out this year for the opening practice, although Crabtree, who starred last year in the nets, will have to be replaced due to graduation. Hushion is another member of the squad who has graduated.

There are a few new men who are expected to turn out at the workouts this year. From Westmount High School come three prospects namely, Allan Findlay, Laurie Eden and Philip Gurd.

This year will also see the return of about six of last year's squad to help the team along and perhaps reverse some of the setbacks they suffered last year. These include many of last year's stellar performers in the persons of "Shrag" Shragovitch, Pete Bourne and Jack Rabinovich. "Shrag" is the Team Captain and holder of the Pat Earl Trophy for the past season and will be more than a welcome addition to the team. Pete Bourne's presence will also be felt on this year's team for his speed and endurance were invaluable assistance last year.

The remaining players from last year's squad who are expected to report this year are as follows: Lindsay, Shapiro, and Sid Barza. It is not known definitely whether Alex Ross of last year's squad will be out again but rumour has it that he probably will see action again this season.

All Freshmen interested in either Water Polo or in Swimming are invited to attend the opening practice at 5:00 p.m. next Monday at the K. of C. tank.

Bert Love Injured During Practice

Newcomers Invited to Attend Practices

McGill Track fans will be sorry to hear that Bert Love, former Intercollegiate pole vaulting champion and runner-up in this event last year, was hurt yesterday afternoon during practice and it will probably keep him on the sidelines this year. After clearing the bar in one of his jumps yesterday, Bert landed on a nail in the sand pit which entered deep into his foot. The exact seriousness of the injury has not yet been determined, but nevertheless he is not expected to return to the pole vault this year.

At yesterday's practice there were a few new newcomers, which was very gratifying indeed, for if the Redmen are going to regain the Intercollegiate championship more recruits will be necessary.

There were two of last year's squad at yesterday afternoon's practice representing the five mile cross country harrier run, namely Glen Cowan and Terry Todd. Bob Quimby who is also a harrier runner, is out temporarily with a sore leg. These three tracksters are also middle distance runners, and all three were point scorers on last year's Track team.

champion, was out yesterday and went through a thorough workout, and is expected to round out into shape rapidly.

Hubert Borsman and Porter were out yesterday too. Hubert is a valuable miler and half miler, while Porter is a good hurdler. Vaughan Mason and Carl Mosowitz started practicing early this season and are certainly good men to have on the team. Herbie Owens is a last year's star who has returned to the shot put, discus and javelin events.

The track and field are available for practices and tryouts every afternoon from 4:30 p.m. until 6:00 p.m. Track equipment is supplied by the University to all who are interested.

Coach Van Wagner has requested that all freshmen interested in track and all upperclassmen new to the track are invited to attend as soon as possible.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT TO COMMENCE ON MCTAVISH COURTS

Monday Is Last Day For Entries

ENTRY FEE 50 CENTS

New Men Needed for Intercollegiate Team

The first men's major Campus sporting event will take place next Wednesday when the Annual Men's Tennis Tournament will begin on the Campus Courts. A large list of entries is expected for the matches, in view of the coming Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament which will be held here this year. The only remaining player from last year's tennis team is this season's captain, Pierre Dessaulles. The other two members of last year's team, Bill O'Brien and Harry Schwartz are not at college this year. This means the building up of a new team around Pierre Dessaulles as the key man of the team. Pierre is expected to reach the finals of the campus matches. Another player who should show up well in the play will be Jack McMartin, who was the spare man on the team when they made the trip to Kingston last year.

At least two men will have to be picked for this year's squad. Thus the coming tourney will be a wide open affair with the stake of probably representing McGill in the intercollegiate matches. Varsity have been the title holders for the past two years and are expected to have a good team this year to defend their crown.

The entry fee for the campus tournament is 50 cents, and the last day for entries is Monday. Entries may be made at the courts any time before Monday night.

SOCCERITES LOSE TO S.S. LETITIA

Team to Take a Three Day Trip to U.S.A.

RECRUITS NEEDED

Yesterday afternoon the crew of the S.S. Letitia overwhelmingly defeated the McGill Soccer Squad by the score of 12-1. The Scottish team outplayed the Redmen, and from the outset they were constantly bombarding the Redmen's goal. The McGill squad has only been practising for one week, so this accounts for their defeat. However, the team expects to be in good shape for their trip to the United States next Wednesday. The team will play Dartmouth on Thursday, and Amherst on Friday, returning home the same night.

The game started off very fast, but neither team was able to score. However, towards the close of the first half the speed of the visitors combined with their accurate passing enabled them to score two goals. The half ended with no further score. In the last half the opposing team scored eight goals before Watson scored on a brilliant play saving McGill from being whitewashed. The Scots followed up with two more goals in the last minute of play, and the game ended with no further score.

Some of the visiting members have played for professional teams in England. This accounts for their excellent team work which was the deciding factor in the game. The McGill team has been strengthened by new recruits who proved very valuable in today's game. The outstanding players for McGill were Janikun, Soroka, Watson, Archer, and Hagen, while Russell and Kerr shared eight of the winning goals.

The lineup for the game was as follows:

Letitia.	McGill.
McKay	Scott
Toner	Hagen
Kerr	Northcott
Rowett	Tetreault
Quinn	Archer
Carr	Leonards
Scott	Murrill
Buckley	Bailey
Gourly	Soroka
Russell	Janikun
McKinnell	Laing

HOME-MADE CIGARETTES AND CORNCOB MAKE APPEARANCE IN FROTH TRADITIONS.

Vigilant sophomores will again stalk the campus this year to make sure that no freshman dares break the traditional regulations imposed upon them by upper classmen, according to Robert Spiegelmann, president of Phi Epsilon Phi, national pep fraternity.

These regulations are in force starting October 1, and continuing until Homecoming, according to Ray Hill, commissioner of traditions on the A.S.U.C. commission.

The only major innovation in the regulations makes it easier upon the freshmen who were not allowed to smoke on the campus; now they can, but must either "roll their own," or use a corn-cob pipe.

Any freshman, man or woman, caught smoking a "tailor-made" cigarette or regular pipe, is liable to immediate confiscation of the tobacco by the upperclassman discovering the defect.

This regulation is enforceable by any upperclassman, not just members of the pep groups, Spur and Phi Epsilon Phi.

Regulations Follow.

Other regulations are as follows:
1. All freshman men shall wear "dinkies," which will be sold at the time the student's picture is taken. Freshman women are required to wear the identifying buttons, which may be procured in the office of the Registrar.
2. At no time shall any freshman walk on the grass.
3. Freshmen shall stand aside on the sidewalks when upperclassmen approach.
4. Freshmen are forbidden to cross Varsity bridge.

Moot Court for Offenders.
These regulations will be enforced by Phi Epsilon Phi and Spur, and all who dare break them will be hied into moot court, where punishment compatible with the gravity of the offence will be dealt.

Another rule which will be enforced states that all freshmen must sit in one section at the football games.

—Silver and Gold.

FRESHETTES DAZED; ENJOY WEINER ROAST

This year's crop of Freshettes is no exception to that traditional feeling of bewilderment and the sense of being "out of it all." In the midst of the shuffle, however, they have managed to form a good many opinions favorable and otherwise. Some of them seemed to think that their reception at R.V.C. was a trifle cool.

The football game and weiner roast on Wednesday night was met with enthusiasm, although a couple of lassies remarked with some bitterness that they had not had enough weiners. "We wish," they said wistfully, "that the Freshmen didn't look quite so bewildered. It's bad enough for one of us to look lost, but when we're both wandering around with our eyes dropping out, it's awful."

The question as to the type of man they preferred brought in varied answers. The Freshettes like them dark and fair, quiet and noisy, intelligent and dumb. They like sporting men, cynical men and amusing men. They like men who wear quiet clothes, and men who wear flashy clothes, if the flash is subtle and not too pronounced. One and all they go thumbs down on suits with loud checks and rare colored hats. Above all, they like a man with a sense of humor. They think they're going to like it here.

The War Is Over

By OBSERVER.

Last night the terms of the Hitler peace treaty were announced at Munich after hours of deliberation on the part of the leaders of Europe. Two things in these terms of peace are significant. In the first place peace was achieved without actual war. In the second place Hitler had to back down from his original demands.

The fact that peace has been obtained without an actual war is an indication that civilization has advanced since 1914. In the days before the Great War a certain amount of international organization had been built up. We had the World Court at the Hague, and certain International Commissions for the exchange of information and for the carrying out of non-political projects. Since the World War we have witnessed the creation and decline of the League of Nations. We have witnessed the organization of International Commissions and tribunals for the maintenance of peace. We have seen these institutions fail in the case of China, Spain and Ethiopia. But in this instance, when a really important issue faced the rulers of Europe—when an issue involving the lives of the nationals of the states concerned was raised, the rulers of Europe proved themselves equal to the task of solving the problems. In 1914 we fought. In 1938 we arbitrate. That in itself is an indication that the world has cast off some of its barbaric outlook and that calm thought and discussion has replaced force of arms.

Will For Peace.

The second point of note is that Hitler was stopped at the eleventh hour. Originally Hitler had agreed to certain measures which, had they been carried out, would have ensured his occupation of Sudetenland with a minimum of international disturbance. When he found that these terms were acceptable to the opposing powers he raised the ante. He demanded economic control of the Czechs, control of their munitions plant and practically control of domestic policy. This demand was too much. The Czechs could not comply. This refusal was backed by the British and French. War threatened, but a conference was held instead and the French and British, with the aid of the Italians convinced Hitler that he had to back down.

Perhaps the force of arms on the side of Britain and France had something to do with the reconsideration on the part of Hitler. Be that as it may, there was a reconsideration on the part of Hitler. That in itself is significant of the trend of the age. People generally have been taught that war is to be avoided. The modern communications which link the world together have made it possible for each one of us to realize the critical situation the world has been in for the past month and has made people generally hope that war could be avoided. This has had its reflection in the council chambers of the nations and has resulted in the will for peace on the part of the world's rulers.

Today we can resume our work at college. We will not have to carry arms or participate in a war in Europe.

They'll Obey Rules.

It was very early on a frosty morn, the temperature was hovering around 40 degrees and the clock was hovering around 6:30 o'clock. At the edge of Varsity lake could be heard unusual activity.

"Okay, boys!"

"One."

"Two."

"Three."

And a half-clothed body curved in a graceful arc over the then-peaceful but slightly scummy water. A muffled cry, a SPLASH! And then in the silence following, concentric circles could be seen radiating from a bobbing head.

Another freshman had hit the drink.

That was last year, but erring frosh may again expect such swift and terrible retribution for their sins, at the hands of alert upperclassmen.

University traditions are a sacred thing to upperclassmen, freshmen will soon learn; and these traditions must not be taken lightly. Smoking "tailormades," walking across Varsity bridge, failure to wear dinkies, walking on the grass—violation of these and other freshman rules are crimes punishable by the cold waters of Varsity lake.

'Newsies' Get Jobs.

In the college of journalism, eight of the 16 graduates have reported that they received employment, according to an announcement from the office of the college—The Silver and Gold.

Study Studying.

Freshmen enter the University with every requirement needed for entrance duly approved by administration authorities. But many of them find soon enough that they lack one thing—the ability to study and make their thoughts stick.

Plunging from the easy-going high school studying into high-pressure assignments of the University, they find themselves bewildered. Perhaps they are right in complaining, as many before them have done, that an important part of their education has been neglected—the art of studying.

Studying is perhaps one of the most individualistic things about a college student. Some students study in jerks, some take it steadily and others give up after reading the other fellow's notes. Some students read an assignment, and for the life of them they can't give a comprehensive resume of what they have read.

Then there is the student, the envy of his associates, who can sit down and concisely tear an assignment apart and see what was in the mind of the writer of the text. His analysis of the assignment is complete and comprehensive. By getting the whole picture, he is able to see the details in their proper relations to the whole. He has been studying. He is the hard-to-find exception.

Who is to blame for this general befuddlement on the part of students? Surely the students are not to blame. They are not aware of the necessity for the systematic method of thinking until up against the real need for it. Then it is sometimes too late as they have already established deep-rooted thought-patterns and study habits. Seriously considering what they believe is a decided handicap which makes their education a struggle against a daily millstone about their necks, several college students have suggested that study-instruction should be given in the high schools.

They reason that as extensive instruction is given in high school and college in the bulging of muscles, why not devote some effort and time to improving the methodical use of the mind?—C. S. C.—Daily Athenaeum.

Can Study English Here.

International House has been founded for the purpose of bringing together students from all parts of the world and offering to foreign students facilities for studying English as it is spoken in America today, it was announced recently through a branch of the Phillips Brooks House.

Memory Promptly Joggled.

Philadelphia, September 28.—Police took a young woman, an apparent amnesia victim, to Philadelphia General Hospital for treatment. Physicians examined her and thought she was "faking." "This will hurt a good bit," a physician said as he took out a large hypodermic needle. The girl quickly identified herself.

CONFIDENTIAL GUIDE NOW ON SALE TO ALL UPPERCLASSMEN

Once again the Crimson offers to all upperclassmen the Confidential Guide to Fields of Concentration. Formerly written only for the benefit of new Freshmen it now comprises extensive remarks on advanced courses and the different special fields of study.

Seven hundred members of the Class of 1941 answered questionnaires on elementary courses last spring and 300 upperclassmen came to meetings on the 22 fields of concentration in an attempt to produce intelligent criticism of the courses of study.

Delivered free to members of '42, there is a charge of twenty-five cents for the Guide, obtainable at the Crimson office.—Harvard Crimson.

Sorley's hands anw twice he galloped in for easy touchdowns. The campus was not flat but had a surface of rolling waves of ankle-spraining turf for those of us who played English rugby with its permissible hacking in these grand, good-tempered scrimmages.

At sixteen I entered the Arts and Law Faculties. Professor Morsey's course in English was stimulating. He taught us to read and time and again advised us to be "men of few books."

The Law lectures were held over the Molson's Bank, St. James Street, between four and six p.m. The course covered about a third of the civil law and procedure codes and much English law. Several of the outstanding men at the Bar lectured. Dean W. H. Kerr, Q.C., gave fine lectures. Benjamin, on sales, insurance, international law, and wills and bequests. Another first-class professor was N. W. Trenholme, Q.C.

As a student I was indentured to the late Josep Doutre, Q.C., and when he was retained by the Free Thought Club to defend it against a seizure by the Customs authorities of volumes of Voltaire and Paines' "Age of Reason," I was able to enter the witness box and testify before the court that such reprehensible books, replete with religious criticisms, could be read any day in the McGill Library. Sir John A. Macdonald's government, to please Quebec, was trying to padlock the morals of the people.

I graduated in '85 and am glad to say that two of my year, Chief Justice R. A. E. Greenshields and Mr. Harry J. Hague, K.C., are still "going strong" in their sweet memories of the good old days.

DAILY 'DARTMOUTH' IN FIGHT TO AVERT REGULATION BY AUTHORITIES OF COLLEGE

Contest Proposed Appointment of Trustee to Control Paper's Activities

Censorship of the press has become a live issue on the Dartmouth campus this year, as University authorities there are moving to gain control of the "Dartmouth," Hand-over undergraduate daily.

A meeting of President Hopkins and the 12 college trustees early in October is expected to reach a decision on the fate of the 100-year-old paper, which has been fighting college interference since the censorship question first arose last May.

Seek to Appoint Trustee.

College authorities, acting on an investigation of campus publications conducted during the spring term, seek to regulate the "Dartmouth" through the appointment of an Alumni Trustee who would supervise the work of the paper's editors and business managers. Under this plan the trustee appointed would hold a controlling share of the publication's corporate stock, which is at present held jointly by the editor-in-chief and the business manager and is handed down to their successors each June.

It was further revealed that if the investigating committee's suggestions are put into effect the Alumni Trustee will have the right to remove from office any member of the "Dartmouth's" staff at any time. This proposal, bring up as it does a clear issue of University censorship, has aroused bitter opposition from undergraduate sources.

Paper Presents Petition.

In reply to the moves of the President and trustees the "Dartmouth" has presented a petition to Hopkins containing a counterproposal to the Committee's suggestions.

With campus opinion divided and with feeling strong on both sides, the future of the undergraduate daily hangs upon the October decision of President Hopkins and the 12 College Trustees.
